

NUTRITION EDUCATION RESOURCE LIST

Nutrition education curricula and print, audiovisual, and computer-based materials may be obtained from local affiliates of voluntary health promotion organizations (e.g., the American Cancer Society or the American Heart Association), county cooperative extension services, local and state health departments, school districts, state education agencies, universities, and commodity organizations or national boards for specific food industries. State Nutrition Education and Training Program coordinators can help schools identify the most appropriate nutrition education curricula and materials. The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Information Center and the National Food Service Management Institute sponsor clearinghouses that can help schools identify a wide range of nutrition education and school food service resources.
